ABSTRACT

Based upon a questionnaire survey of two-year institutions conducted by the American Association of Community and Junior Colleges (AACJC), this directory provides information on 1,234 community, junior, and technical colleges in the United States and its territories, as well as 1977 and 1978 statistics on enrollments and personnel for each. Following introductory material on the compilation of the directory, a data summary, suggestions for interpreting the data, and a list of changes in institutions since the previous year are presented. Next, the directory lists each two-year college alphabetically by state or country and provides the following information: location; chief executive officer; telephone number; year college classes began; type of control or affiliation; AACJC membership; state recognition or accrediting agency; type of academic calendar; October 1977 and 1978 full- and part-time and total enrollment; community education enrollment in 1977-78; full- and part-time and total faculty, professional staff, and administrators as of October 1978; and tuition and fees required in 1978-79. Next, tables are presented summarizing enrollment and personnel data by state for all institutions, and for public and independent colleges. Lists of community, junior, and technical college organizations and state administrators for two-year college education, and an alphabetical listing of colleges conclude the directory. (AYC)

INTRODUCTION

Community, junior, and technical colleges from across the country have once again responded to the annual enrollment survey of the American Association of Community and Junior Colleges, as the following tables will show. Many have done so with less enthusiasm than in the past, we suspect, because the pictures they could report were not as positive as they probably would like them to be. For in a great many cases, enrollments were down or merely holding even.

The computers have refined and churned out the raw data that we received—and there is a decided change in the outcomes in comparison with the boom years of the 1960's or even the leveling-off period of the mid-1970's. Overall, enrollments are down slightly (see analysis, page 2). The effects of the tax revolt, declining veteran enrollments, and the narrowing numbers of young people in the population ranks are reflected in this year's report. But only in some states and some individual colleges.

What the figures suggest is something that planners have been predicting for a number of years. That community, junior, and technical colleges—as well as other institutions of postsecondary education—will need to redefine their markets for the next decades. They will need to mount greater efforts to make their services and strengths known to older people and to a vast segment of the population that remains untouched by education.

We hope the information will be useful to the reporting colleges as they attempt to analyze trends across the country. Thanks in large part to the cooperation of the institutions, we feel confident in saying that the 1979 Community, Junior, and Technical College Directory is one of the most reliable documents of its kind. Figures have been checked and double-checked. The data collection staff have gone to great lengths to insure reliability, though in the final analysis the colleges must take credit for the accuracy of the information.

In addition to statistical data, the Directory provides names and addresses of more than 1200 community, junior, and technical colleges, as well as names of the chief administrative officers. Accreditation and the type of college control are indicated as well.

The Directory also contains names and addresses of state directors of community and junior college education, and information on state and regional organizations of two-year institutions. It should be noted that the publication is not an AACJC membership roster—though institutions that hold membership are identified. Effort has been made to include all institutions which fit the definition of community-based community, junior, and technical colleges. Institutions included are those that are nonprofit and that are organized on a two-year basis, have regional accreditation or are candidates for accreditation, and offer two-year associate degree programs. The Directory does not include information on proprietary institutions.

As a part of this year's survey, the data collection office also gathered new information on minority involvement in community colleges. Data were collected on racial and ethnic categories—including enrollment and faculty and staff. The information will be published in a separate report, one that we believe is long overdue.

The Data/Some Interpretations

Fall 1978 enrollment for community, junior, and technical colleges shows a decrease of one percent. This lack of growth is the first experienced by community colleges in the past 20 years. Total headcount for credit courses is 4,304,058, a slight drop from last year's 4,309,948.

The public institutions remained close to last year's level, while private colleges decreased both in number of institutions and enrollment.

Enrollment figures for each institution are reported in Table I of the Directory. Where 1978 total enrollment figures were not available, total fall 1977 enrollment figures appear. All enrollments are given as headcount figures and include only those students enrolled in courses or programs for credit. Data on enrollment by sex are not published by institution, but are summarized in Table B. Of the four categories, enrollment of full-time men students showed the greatest decrease.

Percent Change 1977-78	−9.3%	−3.5%	−4.3%	− .5%

Some colleges reported only total enrollment, faculty, professional staff, or administrators rather than the breakdowns invited by the survey form. Because of this discrepancy in reporting patterns, the male/female figures and the full-time/part-time figures shown in these tables will not equal the total figures reported in Tables II, III, and IV.

This discrepancy in reporting resulted in an undercount of male/female data. Estimates of the current years figures for this breakdown based on percentage distribution from Table B and the total enrollment provide the more realistic figures of −5.7 for full-time male, +.3 for part-time male, −.5 for full-time female, and +3.4 for part-time female.

According to data received from 99 percent of the 1,234 colleges listed in this Directory, enrollment at the public colleges remained almost unchanged. Enrollment totaled 4,160,611 for fall 1977, and 4,159,456 for fall 1978. Eleven independent two-year institutions closed or changed status, and enrollment declined by a little ove[illegible] percent, from 149,373 for fall 1977 to 144,602 for fa[illegible]78.

Table C provides information on distribution by size of enrollment. This table is influenced by the way the institution reports enrollment. If a multi-campus institution reports enrollment for each campus, each campus is counted in the appropriate rank. If the college reports aggregate data, the institution is shown once in that larger category, but the campuses appear in the "not available" column.

Increasingly, colleges report growing participation in service, recreational, and life enrichment programs that are not a part of a for-credit, academic program. This participation is reported in the Directory as community education enrollment. Because these programs vary in length, with no clearly defined registration periods, it is difficult to get a clear picture of the magnitude of this important part of community/junior college life. Some institutions do not routinely collect enrollment figures from community education students. Even though this field was frequently left blank on the Directory survey forms, the data show an increased participation of eight percent. The total number of participants in 1977 was reported as 2,852,673, compared with 3,078,079 for 1978. According to the U.S. Office of Education there are well over four million non-credit students this year, while ten years ago there were just over three-quarters of a million. This is nearly a five hundred percent growth in community education enrollment in two-year colleges between 1968 and 1978.

This Directory also lists the number of faculty, professional staff, and administrators. Table D illustrates changes in this population for the past three fall terms. For every 100 faculty members there are 6.6 professional staff members and 7 administrators. Using the two-year period, 1976-1978, the ratio of administrators to faculty increased by 2.6 percent, while the ratio of professional staff to faculty increased 6.1 percent. When comparing total enrollment to total faculty, we find a ratio of 21 students to one faculty member, the same ratio as last year.

Tuition again rose for both public and independent colleges between fall 1977 and 1978. The average tuition for the academic year rose from $355 to $394 or an increase of 10.9 percent for public colleges. Independent colleges reported $1,685 in 1977 and $1,792 in 1978, or an increase of 6.4 percent. These increases are slightly higher than those shown between 1976 and 1977 when the public sector increased tuition by 9.9 percent and the private sector reported a 2.4 percent increase. The consumer price index for the year ending September 1978 increased by 8.2 percent, falling in between the average increases shown by public and by private institutions.

As in the past, data for this Directory were collected directly from all two-year institutions. Each institution received a pre-printed verification form showing the figures reported by the college for the previous year, and explanations for increases or decreases over 10 percent were requested from each college. It is hoped that the use of this system eased the reporting requirements and assured increased accuracy of the data.

The Directory includes individual campuses of two-year institutions that are separately listed to arrive at the full number of colleges. Since this method of totaling institutions was started in 1975, differences in the number of colleges from year to year are not solely due to colleges opening or closing. In addition to the method of counting colleges, changes in the total are also caused by mergers, changes in accreditation status, or type of program.

For some institutions, enrollment and other data are reported by campus; for others, the data are aggregated and reported for the college as a whole. A number of colleges offer courses and programs at various centers throughout their communities in secondary schools, churches, and senior centers. Such centers are not included or counted in this Directory.

Enrollment comparisons given in this introduction are based on data as reported for the fall term of 1977 and published in the 1978 Directory. Since the publication of the previous edition, additional information and clarification of enrollment figures have been received, altering slightly the fall 1977 figure, as reported in Tables II, III, and IV of this Directory.

AACJC is grateful to the individuals at both member and nonmember institutions who carefully completed the Directory survey forms. It is because of their efforts that we can present this detailed report on community, junior, and technical colleges.

Questions concerning the data reported in the Directory can be referred to the AACJC data office.
